

The ABA Parent Place:

Welcome Information on How to Most Effectively Use these Resources

Welcome APTS Families to the ABA Parent Place! This is an online a resource center for you that was originally developed to aid and support virtual learning during the extended school closures as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. We recognize that virtual and at-home learning might be brand new to many of our families- in fact it's brand new to many of us here at APTS as well! We wanted to develop a platform through which we could provide you with resources for at-home instruction, behavioral support, and more!

Here you will find several trainings to aid in your use of ABA principles at home. There are videos, tutorials, templates and copies of resources and visual supports and much much more! Additionally, you will also find that there is a resource center of ready-to-go at-home lesson plans and ideas for your use should you want to utilize these for extra support and instruction!

You will first find some helpful logistical information including the Meet the Behavior Specialist Letters, where you can be virtually introduced to your student's Behavior Specialist/Analyst and the APTS Behavior Team! Next you'll find a welcome video that talks about the resources available.

Your behavior specialist is available via email to answer any questions regarding how to support your learner at home, as well as provide you with ideas for what might work to help motivate your student during virtual learning, and coaching support if you're providing additional at-home instruction! We are also available to consult with ABA in-home providers, tutors, etc. should you like!

Stay Healthy and We'll See You Again Soon,

The APTS Behavior Team
